Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 07 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold and dry today, turning warmer overnight and tomorrow.

Today:
A dry but cloudy day for most today, with cloud increasing as the day progresses. Remaining cold, though slightly warmer than yesterday. Biting winds easing slightly from yesterday but still feeling cold. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Tonight:
A cold start to the night with clear skies. Cloud and warmer air moving in will result in temperatures rising by dawn. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Thursday:
Remaining cloudy for most throughout the day, with the odd shower or spot of drizzle possible. Continuing to get warmer, but with the wind picking back up. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Turning cold again for the next three days, with overnight frost possible. Friday a band of rain moving south through the day. Saturday and Sunday mostly dry with sunny spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.